Reasons to go Contract

Freedom

Many thousands of IT professionals choose a career in contracting. If you're considering making the switch, we've got some great reasons why!

You can experience a company without having to make a long term commitment.

Flexibility with work hours and holidays.

Variety

Variety – increase your current skills through diversity of exposure and experience – industry, technology, structures, cultures, companies, size and complexity.

Flexibility

Lifestyle – you can have blocks of time free for your own projects and hobbies.

Lifestyle

New Things

Staying in the same company for a long time can make you become 'too comfortable' within the same organisation, in the same role. Branch out and meet new people, work in different, challenging environments. Keep your skills current.

Financial

Financial – Contracting can be financially rewarding with good pay rates and some tax benefits.

Be your own boss – take control of your own destiny, your career progression and growth.

Be your own boss

Staying open

You can contract whilst you are looking for that next permanent job.

You can focus on the job without being involved in the politics.

No politics

Promote your name

See through one contract at a time and earn yourself an excellent reputation amongst a variety of clients so that you're well-known throughout the industry.
